A blank sheet of graph paper with a light gray background and a dark gray grid. The grid consists of small squares. There are four horizontal lines across the page, dividing it into five equal rows. There are six vertical lines down the page, dividing it into seven columns of varying widths. The first column on the left is the widest, followed by two narrower columns, then another wide column, and finally three narrow columns on the right. The grid covers most of the page, leaving margins at the top, bottom, and sides.
